When you struggle with both a substance use issue and a mental health issue such as depression, bipolar disorder, or anxiety, it is called a co-occurring disorder or dual diagnosis. Dealing with substance abuse, alcoholism, or drug addiction is never easy, and it’s even more difficult when you’re also struggling with mental health issues. However, there is hope. There are things you can do and treatments that can help you get your life back on track.

• With support, self-help and treatment, you can overcome a dual diagnosis and reclaim your life.
• The high prevalence of Dual Diagnosis Disorders, combined mental health disorders and substance use, has been increasingly documented for both adolescents and adults.

Here at Alpine County, Behavioral Health Services (ACBHS) an integrated program for behavioral health is offered. We are here to address mental health as well as substance use issues in adults and youth. ACBHS provides individual therapy and counseling. We have a co-occurring group (6:30pm-7:30pm Thursdays), recovery group (4:30pm-5:30pm Wednesdays) and a women’s support group (1:30pm Wednesdays).

• Coming in July 2017, we will offer “A Balanced Perspective”; a group held in the Markleeville Library on Tuesdays at 2:00 pm. This group will address mindfulness in recovery and promote life balance. Beginning 07/11/17. This group will help build coping skills that connect life situations to emotions. It will help identify false beliefs, as well as the consequences of emotional dodging. The group will also help you to make decisions based on core values.

• There will also be a Parent Education series offered, which will address how to prevent and recognize drug and alcohol abuse in your children. This series will help parents communicate better during potential and current drug & alcohol abuse situations. 07/11 & 07/18 @ 6 PM at the Firehouse at Hung-A-Lel-Ti. All are welcome!

We encourage input from community members on what they feel are key issues in areas of Behavioral Health and we will continue to provide a high level of service to Alpine County.

PREPARE FOR WILDFIRE

BEING READY WILDFIRE PREPAREDNESS

Being Ready for wildfire starts with maintaining an adequate defensible space and by hardening your home by using fire resistant building materials. Defensible space is the buffer you create by removing dead plants, grass and weeds. This buffer helps to keep the fire away from your home. Hardening your home means using construction materials that can help your home withstand flying embers finding weak spots in the construction, which can result in your house catching fire. It takes the combination of both defensible space and the hardening of your home to really give your house the best chance of surviving a wildfire.*

The dangers of flavored tobacco products have been highlighted in many past issues of Alpine Threads, and residents of our beautiful county understand just how harmful they are. According to the results of the 2016 Alpine County Tobacco Control survey, 90% of respondents are concerned that youth are more likely to try flavored tobacco products. With the huge variety of new flavored tobacco products available today, people may forget the “original” flavor – menthol. Here are just a few things to remember about menthol:

- Menthol’s anesthetizing effect makes the smoke “smooth” and easier to inhale while masking the harshness of tobacco, making menthol cigarettes more appealing to young and beginner smokers. [1]
- Menthol allows smokers to inhale more deeply and for harmful particles to settle deeper inside the lungs. [2] By reducing airway pain and irritation, continuous menthol smoking can mask the early warning symptoms of smoking-induced respiratory problems. [3]
- Menthol decreases the metabolism of nicotine and increases the amount of the addictive substance in the blood, making cigarettes even more dangerous and difficult to quit. [4]
- In July of 2013, the FDA released a preliminary scientific review that found that menthol made it easier to start smoking and allowed for a faster progression to regular use of cigarette smoking; it also found that menthol made it harder to quit smoking, especially among African American menthol smokers. The FDA solicited public comment on the “potential regulation” of menthol cigarettes. [39]

Communities around California have taken bold steps to regulate the sale of flavored tobacco products, including menthol. Recent flavored tobacco sales bans in San Francisco and Yolo County are particularly strong - including e-cigarettes and menthol and offering no exemptions. Communities like Alpine County can take a stand against products designed to entice youth into a lifetime of addiction. A few options include restricting or banning the sale of flavored tobacco products, capping the number of local tobacco retailers, or regulating minimum pack size or price.

School may be out, but for kids starting kindergarten this fall, now is the time to get ready for the classroom, both physically and emotionally. By helping your child master a few practical key skills, you can give your children the confidence they need to succeed on their first day of school—and every day after! Kindergarten readiness includes both practical skills that children will need to succeed, as well as social emotional skills that will help them successfully function in a classroom of peers. And, parents play a key role in preparing them for that first day from establishing a routine and easing their fears to holding a pencil and listening to directions. Helping them develop these skills is the most important job a parent can have.

Talk with Me It’s crucial for children to have the confidence and ability to use their words.
- Parents can help develop language skills by having frequent conversations with their children and encouraging them to use words to express their feelings and reactions to the world around them.
- Read to your child for 20 minutes every day and talk about the story, the characters and what happened first, next and last.
- Sing songs and read stories or poems with rhyming words to expose them to different sounds as they build their vocabulary.

Your Turn, My Turn Preschoolers are just beginning to understand the concept of sharing.
- Parents can make sharing fun by teaching cooperative play, like completing puzzles or building a block tower together.
- As you’re building the block tower, walk through the concept of sharing by saying, “Now it’s your turn to add a block and then it will be my turn.”
- Use positive reinforcement to encourage sharing. When you see your child sharing with someone else, point out how she made the other person happy and give her a hug.

1,2,3 – Count With Me Children entering Kindergarten can typically count to 10 on the first day of class.
- Teach your child to count by using everyday objects like blocks, buttons, soup cans, even your child’s fingers and toes!
- Parents can make counting part of your daily routine by asking your child to count the number of plates needed for dinner or the number of steps you’re climbing together. Or, tell your child to pick out “two” books to read before bedtime.

My Name is… Children are expected to be able to print their first name.
- Start by teaching children how to spell their name when they’re toddlers. Start by pointing out the first letter of their name whenever you see it. You can also play word games by saying, “Your name starts with ‘T’ like tiger. What else starts with that letter?”
- Your child can practice writing their name with their finger to get the feel of the letters. Try spreading shaving cream or pudding on a cookie sheet for fun practice.
- You can also work with your child on the correct pencil grip by encouraging your child to use their thumb and index finger to pick up small objects like O-shaped cereal with their fingers. This will make your child practice the proper pincer grip.
- Playing with play dough can also help develop muscles in the hand that are needed for writing or cutting.

Listen Well to Learn Better Kids learn best when they’re taught to actively listen when the teacher’s speaking to them.
- Improve your child’s listening skills by encouraging them to repeat directions back to you. This will force them to repeat instructions in their mind and then act on them.
- Use multi-step directions to build your child’s attention span by outlining multiple tasks for them to do, such as “Pick up your toys first, then grab your coat.”
- Try playing games with your child that require listening and following simple directions. Games like Simon Says or Red Light, Green Light are fun games that require listening and following directions.
