Second Case of COVID-19 Identified in an Alpine County Resident

This morning we were notified of a positive laboratory result for an Alpine County resident identified with a coronavirus infection. Since our only other case more than 3 months ago, we have been anticipating this event as we have monitored the increasing number of cases in all of the surrounding counties.

The individual has been contacted by our team and is recovering at home without being hospitalized. The source of exposure has been identified from out of the county, and all local contacts have been interviewed. There is no risk to the community at large from this case. No further identifying information will be forthcoming due to the small size of our communities.

It is extremely important to remember that containing the spread of this pandemic relies much more on your personal choices and behavior than it does on any government mandates or restrictions.
