LEARNING SKILLS ON HILLS

Six Alpine County youth from 10 to 17 years old graduated from Snowboard Outreach Society’s (SOS) learn to ride program on a bluebird day at Kirkwood, Sunday, March 6th. This is a nation-wide program that builds leadership and character in youth. Four-hour ski lessons with caring instructors, and program days facilitated by staff and volunteers gave youth an opportunity to discuss their successes and challenges while building relationships with adults and peers. In addition, a curriculum on core values such as courage, integrity and compassion took place over the course of the program. Behavioral Health helped families pay for program fees and Dawn Riddle and Erica Forzley drove and mentored the youth.

At the end of the days, the children looked back on the experience as fun. One 10-year-old internalized the lesson about compassion; when asked if they would recommend this program to a peer, they replied, “I would tell them that if they want to do this program then they should do it, and if they don’t want to do it then I would tell them that they don’t have to.” It was great to see children having fun and learning skills.

CITIZEN SPOTLIGHT | MARK SCHWARTZ

In 2016, Mark Schwartz’s friend invited him to Markleeville to cycle in the Death Ride, which today is a 103-mile course with over 14,000 feet of elevation gain, hillier than a typical bike ride in hometown San Jose. No stranger to tackling challenges, Mark agreed. Charmed by his July stay at Carson River Resort, Mark and his wife, Pat Schwartz felt guided by intuition to move from San Jose to Markleeville and they did so in October of 2016. In July of 2017 he tackled the Deathride, which then was over 125 miles with about 15,000 feet of climbing, and did all five (5) passes. Not long after he convinced his mom, January Riddle, to move here also.

Mark advocates for biking (and the outdoors) in Alpine County through his blog, “California Alps Cycling” www.californiaalpscycling.bike. There are two main purposes of California Alps Cycling, to attract cyclists to the area and to help locals better understand cyclists; what makes them tick, and what they have to offer. The more recreators who come to Alpine County to say, bike or fish, the more money is spent at businesses here. Mark wants roads and trails to become more bike friendly and he wants recreation trails to welcome horses also. Relative to a bigger town, people in Markleeville are valued as individuals, a power than can be harnessed to make a difference.

When Mark isn’t biking miles that total 5,000-6,000 a year, working at his full-time job or on his blog, he is serving on local boards and committees. He serves on the Board of Directors of Markleeville Water Company, is a member of the Caltrans Bicycle Pedestrian Advisory Committee, is the President of the Alpine Co. Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors and is the Officer at Large of the Alpine Trails Association. There are common goals among these agencies and others, organizations and individuals. People from different entities are coming together to meet the potential that lies in Alpine County.

You can follow Mark on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram at California Alps Cycling (bikedalps is his handle for all three) or on his blog www.californiaalpscycling.bike.

Give your Input on Events!

Based on recent findings in the Community Health Improvement Plan, there is a desire among community members for social connection and healthy lifestyle events.

Please take 3 minutes to indicate your interest in attending activities. This survey will be open until May 1st, 2022.

Thank you for your help! https://www.surveyanalytics.com/t/AIoTrZOrMl
Happy spring! While I am still hoping for more snowpack, I’m also excited to see bits of green emerging in the Tamarack Fire burn areas. Since last summer’s fire, the recurring theme in so many of my conversations with community members has been everyone wanting to be able to do something to help. So when Forester Annabelle Monti with the Humboldt-Toiyabe National Forest asked Alpine Watershed Group (AWG) and Alpine Trails Association (ATA) if we’d like to co-host community workdays to plant trees, we jumped at the opportunity.

At time of press, the first community workday on April 9 will have already taken place. If you were able to help, thank you so much! If you were not able to make the first workday, or if you would like to help out more, there will be a second one in May.

AWG and ATA, in partnership with the US Forest Service, warmly invite you and your family to help plant trees on the second workday on Sunday, May 1, 9 a.m.-1 p.m. Due to restrictions on the number of volunteers allowed at some sites, an RSVP is required. Please visit www.alpinewatershedgroup.org to register. Once the registration form and waiver have been completed, more information will be emailed to you.

Volunteers will be planting two-year-old tree seedlings that were donated to the US Forest Service. The species to be planted are Jeffrey pine, ponderosa pine, sugar pine, and incense cedar.

We try to make it appear effortless, but there’s a lot of coordination and planning that goes into organizing community workdays. AWG is a small, lean nonprofit organization, but staff time is our biggest expense. A huge thank you to Trout Unlimited-Sagebrush Chapter for helping to fund AWG’s work on Tamarack Fire recovery in the Upper Carson River watershed. We are also grateful to have support for these workdays from the Alpine County Tobacco Control Program.

In other post-fire news, on March 23 the Carson Ranger District hosted a Tamarack Restoration Project public meeting at Turtle Rock Park to update our community on their progress, and to get community input as they move forward with the required environmental review process for large-scale restoration work on US Forest Service lands. There will be more community meetings with the Forest Service as well as other agencies and organizations. Please stay tuned through AWG’s website (www.alpinewatershedgroup.org) and newsletter. Don’t hesitate to reach out to your watershed group’s staff with questions or ideas; our contact information is below.

May you find hope, peace, and joy however you celebrate Earth Day this April 22 … and throughout the year.

ORAL HEALTH
Lift the lip and look inside once a month

Wash your hands, or wear disposable gloves.
Position the child’s head on your lap, sit facing each other, or lie the child down on a couch or bed.
Lift the lip and look at the child’s teeth and gums. What do you see?

What should your child’s teeth look like?

- Clean
- Unbroken surfaces
- Gums should be firm to the touch, not red and not tender or swollen

If your child has tooth decay you might notice:

1) White spots or white lines on the tooth.
   This is early decay and you need to see an oral health professional.

2) Brown spots or cavities.
   This is decay and you need to see an oral health professional urgently.

3) Advanced decay or broken teeth.
   This is severe decay and may cause your child pain. You should urgently see an oral health professional.

How can you prevent oral diseases?

- Lift the lip monthly to check for early signs of tooth decay.
- Brush twice daily, for 2 minutes with fluoride toothpaste from the eruption of the first tooth, and spit out the toothpaste but do not rinse away the residue.
- Wipe the baby’s mouth after each feed and before bed
- Make healthy food and drink choices, without added sugar.
- Don’t put sweeteners (honey, sugar, fruit juices) in the child’s bottle or sippy cup
  Choose fluoridated tap water to prepare foods and as the preferred drink.
- Visit your oral health professional regularly and before the child’s first birthday.

These are new events that provide an opportunity for parents to come together and have important conversations around improving their families, using the 5 Protective Factors as a framework. Our intent is to draw upon the “abundance” of parental knowledge to help each other by sharing our self-care strategies, building on the strengths we already have, and by learning more about our child’s physical, social, and emotional development. Children are supervised in an activity while the adults have meaningful conversation.

Please RSVP to 530.694.2129 or dhutson@catalystcomm.org

Parents and Caregivers and their Children are all welcome!

Children and adults have opportunities to earn incentives for attending.
